ಅನು - ನಗು

ಅನು ನೀನು ನಕ್ಕರೆ ನನಗೆ ಅದುವೆ ಸಕ್ಕರೆ
ಬೇರಾವ ಸಿಹಿ-ಪಾಕ ಬೇಕು ಎನಗೆ ನಿನ್ನ ನಗುವೊಂದಿದ್ದರೆ||
ನಿನಗೂ ಕೂಡ ಆಗಿದೆ ಕ್ರಶ್ ನನ್ನ ಗೂಳಿಗೆನ್ನೆಯ ಮೇಲೆ,
ಪದೆ-ಪದೆ ಹೇಳುವೆ ನನಗೆ ಎಷ್ಟೊಂದು ನಾಚುತಿಯಾ ಎಂದು.....

ನಗು ಮುಖದ ಅನುವನು ನಾ ನೋಡ ಬಯಸುವೆ ಎಂದಿಗೂ
ನನಗೆ ಗೊತ್ತು ನಿನಗು ಇದೆ ಬಯಕೆ ಎಂದು
ಆದರೆ ಏನು ಮಾಡುವುದು ನಾಚಿ-ನೀರಾಗುವೆ ನೀನು
ಕಾಯುವುದು ಒಳಿತು ಇನ್ನೇಷ್ಟು ದಿನ ಈ ನಾಚಿಕೆ ಎಂದು.....
ಅನು ನೀನು ನಕ್ಕರೆ ನನಗೆ ಅದುವೆ ಸಕ್ಕರೆ.....

ಶುಭ ಮುಂಜಾನೆ ಹೇಳಿ ಪ್ರಾರಂಭವಾದ ದಿನ ಶುಭರಾತ್ರಿಗೆ ಅಂತಿಮ

ನೀನು ಹೇಳುವೆ ನನಗೆ ನೀನಿದ್ದರೆ ಮರೆವೇ ಎಲ್ಲ ದುಃಖವೆಂದು
ನನಗೂ ಅದೇ ರೀತಿ ಆಗುತ್ತದೆ ಯಾವಾಗಲೂ ಎಂದು,
ಅನು ನೀನು ನಕ್ಕರೆ ನನಗೆ ಅದುವೆ ಸಕ್ಕರೆ.....

ಕಣ್ಮರೆಯಾಗುತ್ತಿರುವ ಕನ್ನಡ

ಕನ್ನಡ ಎಂದರೆ ಒಂದು ಸುಂದರ ಭಾಷೆ, ನಮ್ಮ ಜೀವನದ ಉಸಿರು, ತಾಯಿಗೆ ಎಷ್ಟು ಬೆಲೆ ಕೊಡುತ್ತೇವೆಯೋ ಈ ನಮ್ಮ ಕನ್ನಡ ಮಾತೃಭಾಷೆಗೆ ಅಷ್ಟೇ ಗೌರವ ಕೊಡುತ್ತೇವೆ. ಕರ್ನಾಟಕದಲ್ಲೇ ಅನ್ಯ ಭಾಷೆಗಳು ತಮ್ಮ ಪ್ರಭುತ್ವ ಸ್ಥಾಪಿಸುತ್ತಿರುವಾಗ, ಇಂದು ಗ್ರಾಮೀಣ ಪ್ರದೇಶಗಳಲ್ಲಿ ಹುಟ್ಟಿದ ಮಕ್ಕಳಿಗೂ ಆಂಗ್ಲ ಭಾಷಾ ಕಲಿಕೆಯ ಒತ್ತಡವಿದೆಯೇ? ಏನು ಮಾಡುವುದು ಉನ್ನತ ಹುದ್ದೆಗಳೂ ಹಾಗೂ ಜೀವನದಲ್ಲಿ ನೆಲೆಯೂರ ಬೇಕಾದರೆ ಅನ್ಯಭಾಷೆಗಳು ಅವಶ್ಯಕವಾಗಿವೆ. ಹೀಗೆಂದು ನಮ್ಮ ತಾಯಿಯೆಂದು ನಂಬಿರುವ ಕನ್ನಡವನ್ನು ನಾವು ಕೀಳು ಭಾವನೆಯಿಂದ ಕಾಣುವುದು ಸಹಿಸದ ಸಂಗತಿ. ಎಲ್ಲಾ ಭಾಷೆಗಳನ್ನು ಪ್ರೀತಿಸಿ ಕನ್ನಡವನ್ನು ಪೋಷಿಸಿ ಎನ್ನುವಂತೆ ಪ್ರಥಮವಾಗಿ ನಮ್ಮ ಭಾಷೆ ನಂತರ ಅನ್ಯ ಭಾಷೆ, ಆದರೆ ಒಂದಂತೂ ಸತ್ಯ. ನಮ್ಮ ನಾಡಿನಲ್ಲೇ ಕನ್ನಡವನ್ನು ಕೇವಲವಾಗಿ ನೋಡುವವರಿದ್ದಾರೆ ಎಂಬುದು ಕಹಿ ಸತ್ಯ. ಯಾವ ಭಾಷೆಗೇನು ಕಮ್ಮಿ ನಮ್ಮ ಕನ್ನಡ ಭಾಷೆ? ಎಂಟು ಜ್ಞಾನಪೀಠ ಪ್ರಶಸ್ತಿಯನ್ನು ಪಡೆದ ನಮ್ಮ ಕನ್ನಡ ಭಾಷೆಯ ಲಿಪಿ ಎಲ್ಲಾ ಭಾಷೆ ಗಳಿಗಿಂತ ಸುಂದರವಾಗಿದ್ದು, ಅಕ್ಷರಗಳು ಬರೆದರೆ ಮತ್ತು ಗಳನ್ನು ಪೋಷಿಸಿದಂತೆ ಬಾಸವಾಗುತ್ತದೆ. ಇಷ್ಟೆಲ್ಲಾ ಇದ್ದರೂ ನಮ್ಮವರಿಗೆ ಭಾಷೆಯ ಪ್ರೀತಿ ಇಲ್ಲವೇ ಇಲ್ಲ. ಕನ್ನಡ ಮಾತನಾಡಿದರೆ ಗೌರವ ಹೋಗುತ್ತದೆ ಎಂಬ ಭಾವನೆ ನೆಲೆಯೂರಿದೆ. ಯಾರೂ ಏನೇ ಆಗಿರಲಿ ಮಾತೃಭಾಷೆಗೆ ದ್ರೋಹ ಮಾಡಬಾರದು.

ಕನ್ನಡಿಗರು ಕನ್ನಡ ದಿನನಿತ್ಯ ಬಳಸುವುದರ ಮೂಲಕ ಕನ್ನಡವನ್ನು ಉಳಿಸಲು ಸಾಧ್ಯ. ಕನ್ನಡಕ್ಕಾಗಿ ಕಟ್ಟಿದ ಸಂಘ ಸಂಸ್ಥೆಗಳು ಇಂದು ಸರಿಯಾಗಿ ಕಾರ್ಯನಿರ್ವಹಿಸುತ್ತಿವೆಯೇ? ಇಲ್ಲ! ಅವೆಲ್ಲಾ ಕೇವಲ ಅಲ್ಪಕಾಲಿಕ ಸಂಘಟನೆಗಳು, ಯಾವುದೇ ಒಂದು ಸಂಘ ಸಂಘಟಿತವಾದರೆ ಏನು ಪ್ರಯೋಜನವಿಲ್ಲ. ಕನ್ನಡ ನಾಡಿನಲ್ಲಿರುವ ಪ್ರತಿಯೊಬ್ಬ ಕನ್ನಡದ ಪ್ರಜೆಯಲ್ಲೂ ತಮ್ಮ ಮಾತೃಭಾಷೆಯ ಬಗ್ಗೆ ಅರಿವಿರಬೇಕು. ಈ ರೀತಿಯಾಗಿ ಪ್ರತಿಯೊಬ್ಬ ಪ್ರಜೆಯೂ ಕನ್ನಡದ ಬಗ್ಗೆ ಅರಿವು ಮೂಡಿಸಿಕೊಂಡರೆ ಕನ್ನಡದ ಉಳಿವು ಸಾಧ್ಯ.

ಕೊನೆಯಲ್ಲಿ ನಾನು ಹೇಳುವುದು ಇಷ್ಟೇ ಎಲ್ಲಾ ಭಾಷೆಗಳನ್ನು ಪ್ರೀತಿಸಿರಿ, ಕಲಿಯಿರಿ ಆದರೆ ಮೊದಲ ಆದ್ಯತೆ ಕನ್ನಡ, ನಮ್ಮ ಮಾತೃಭಾಷೆಗೆ ಇರಲಿ, ಸಾವಿರಾರು ವರ್ಷಗಳ ಇತಿಹಾಸವಿರುವ ಕನ್ನಡವನ್ನು ಪ್ರೀತಿಸಿ, ಉಳಿಸಿ ಬೆಳೆಸಿ.

GARDENING: A FEEL OF HEAVEN

“Plant your own garden and decorate your own soul, Instead of waiting for someone to bring you flowers”

- Veronica A Shoffstall

Having a garden is like having a good friend and gym in our house. It reciprocates all the warmth and affection of a friend and it only takes a bit of gardening to drench yourself in sweat. A regular dose of gardening provides a sense of peace and tranquillity, a sense of accomplishment, a mood booster and what not. Apart from this, bountiful health benefits like fresh air, reducing stress, helping in combating loneliness, refreshing mind and body and soothing soul always brings garden closer to heart.

Covid-19 pandemic has brought about a paradigm shift in human behavior regarding health and changed people’s perspectives on health. People have become more conscious of their health. People are inclining towards having atleast a mini space for growing vegetables, leafy vegetables, flowers, fruits, medicinal plants on their own. Use of Tulasi, Aloe vera and other medicinal plants enhanced during pandemic. For that, gardening is a gateway to getting fresh fruits and vegetables to stay healthy and fit. When we eat vegetables that are being grown by ourselves, there comes a difference– they taste more delicious, and we’ll be more satisfied. Gardening is also an exceptional means to try new healthy foods that will help us and our family to become more vigorous eaters. Growing variety of fruits and vegetable plants along with flowers and medicinal plants is a pleasurable task.

“Spare time in the garden by involving digging, setting out, or weeding; there is no better way to preserve your health.”- Richard Louv

After knowing the above things, what are you still waiting for? I feel it’s time for us to start gardening. Indeed, appreciating gardening is our task now..... Yes, gardening requires some patience, but it’s worth your time. On top of all that, growing our produce at home is a great way to become sustainable in an economical way. One of the studies at Harvard University revealed that people who were surrounded by lush greenery lived longer “Be a gardener, live longer”.

THE BONSAI: HOW SEEMA BECAME SIMRAN

Bonsai is an art of growing plants artificially into dwarf stature by forcibly controlling their growth. This art was originated in Japan and became popular all over the world. Bonsai plants have huge demand in market and they are integral parts of outdoor garden too. This article talks about a human who is turned into bonsai by the circumstances.

When I first came to Bengaluru, it was a mixture of feelings. For me the perspective of Bengaluru was like a magical world and it was true for most extent.

I saw buildings touching the sky, flyovers, branded vehicles, people with different accent, beautiful gardens, malls, restaurants etc. I started to feel lost.

On the other hand I also saw life on road, problem of garbage, traffic, pollution, and people with faces, life running behind money etc. I understood one thing that there is everything in Bengaluru, what people say about the city is what they experience and it is just a part of it. There is whole lot of things to explore. Bengaluru is not just a city, it's a world within.

Another uniqueness of Bengaluru is its dynamic nature. The city keeps on changing on hourly basis. The city you see in early morning is not the city you see at 9 AM. What you see in the noon is not what you see in evening. What you see at 8 PM is not what you see at midnight. Based on the time in same place you come across people and situations with different faces.

For me Bengaluru was one, but for Bengaluru people like me were lakhs together. People coming here, walking through streets searching address, for the sake of job, to write exams, to give interviews, to join colleges, to start business etc. with responsibilities on their shoulders, dreams in mind and may be money in their pocket or maybe not. The platforms of majestic bus stand, the temple of anand rao circle, the doors of BMTC buses, the rooms of fresh up lodges tell hundreds of stories of these people, daily. Few of them reach their destination and get settled and few are lost in the process and are adopted by Bengaluru in its own way. My article is one such story.

Flyover of Hebbal, the ring road, the fast moving airport road, the traffic during signal and the dosa of Udupi hotel are inseparable parts of my daily life. I move around there several times a day alone as well as with my friends.

One Sunday evening and I was passing near the flyover. In signal my eyes caught a beautiful sight, a girl in long red single piece. Her hairs left open to the breeze of evening. A vanity bag was on her sleeveless shoulders. From far I could see glowing white skin and charming face of her in the light of vehicles. She seemed waiting for someone and my eyes did not seem to get rid of her. The signal became green and honking started. I had to move. I went a little further, parked my bike in side and I came back to see her. But I couldn't see her. I looked around in vain since she had disappeared. I was actually in dilemma whether it was real or a day dream.

I went to room and couldn't stop myself from thinking about her. I took shower, prepared food and had it. But my mind was still near flyover. I tried sleeping but I couldn't.

Next day at the same time I was there. The traffic was as usual. Vehicles had their head lights on along with the horns. While I was looking around for her an auto came and stopped nearby. For my surprise she got down of that auto. In jeans and T-shirt, she was looking even more stunning. She told the auto driver "teek hai bhaiyya" and went and stood in the same place seeming like waiting for someone. My heartbeat was increasing. I remembered my sleepless night. I didn't want her to disappear this time. I started moving towards her with hesitated steps. When I was about 10feet away she turned towards me and I stopped. Both of us were looking at each other. My look with anxiety and her look with question mark. I gathered all my courage and said, "hi" showing all my teeth. She didn't respond for a while. I moved a little further and asked, "Can I talk to you?" She seemed to be in doubt. Suddenly her phone started ringing. She received the call and said, "Teek hai". She turned to me and handed over a card. "Aaj ka booked hai, kal ka hai toh batana" and she turned back and started walking. While I was watching she got into a car and the car moved away. I was standing still with the same question in my mind, whether it was real or a day dream.

Things repeated, I couldn't stop thinking about what had happened, I couldn't sleep again. I need to know the answers; my mind was filled with questions. Firstly, I was feeling sad about what she was and my feelings were broken. Secondly, I was searching for the reason. She was so beautiful and looked educated too. If not a job, she could have easily led a happy married life with family. But that was not the case. I was lost in her thoughts. To come out of it, I had to get answers to all the questions. I remembered the card that she had given. 'Simran' was written in bold capital letters with phone number below.

Next day morning I called her and told that I will pick her from the same place and I did. We were sitting in my room. She was observing around. May be she does this every time. I asked her, "Are you okay?" She replied, "Han ji". "Simran, I want to talk to you. I want to know your life story. Will you please tell me?" I asked. She looked a little panicked and replied, "Aisa kuch nahi chalega. Apne kaam se matlab rakho. Varna mein chale jaaungi. Dandhe ka time waste mat karo." I tried to comfort her. "It's okay. If you don't want, then it's fine. That's why I brought you here. I don't have any other intentions." I told and explained her about what was happening from two days. "If you don't want to tell then you can leave. I will drop you back" I said and kept quiet. There was silence for next 2 minutes. I could hear a weeping sound. Tears were rolling down from Simran's eyes. She broke down. I tried to console her and asked "Why, what happened?" She replied that she was working as a call girl from 7 years. She had never come across a person trying to know about her or showed concern about her life. She had faced worst of the worst situations when she had felt that death is better than living. Now, my question made her remember her family. Then opened the story “how Seema becomes Simran?”.

It was a small village of north India. The village was known for illegal activities. Police were also involved in it. Robbery, murder, kidnaps were usual for the people. Seema was a girl in that village living with her parents and three more sisters. Her father was unhappy about not having a boy child and he used to dump his anger on the girls. This used to lead to quarrel between the wife and the husband. It was day to day situation for the family. The sisters had to stop their education at minimum level. Seema was the elder one. So she used to work in farmland. Going to farm early in the morning every day and returning in the evening was her routine.

Then came the day, which changed the life of Seema. While returning from farm, she was kidnapped by unknown men. She was taken through the village. She was screaming as loud as possible and trying to escape while the men thrashed her harshly. She was taken from in front of her home and that was the last time she saw her home. People were standing on both sides of the road here and there. But nobody came to rescue. In a few moments Seema lost her conscious.

Before Seema woke up she was already sold for money. She was taken to Mumbai. She underwent the heights of cruelty and she was never treated as a human from then onwards. After that she was shifted to Bengaluru along with other girls.

Somewhere in the way Seema escaped from the vehicle. She ran through the streets of an unknown city wiping her tears. She begged each and every one in her language to help her. People hardly responded. Somehow she got a phone to talk. She tried to call her home. The phone rang and her father lifted. Seema was feeling happy for the first time after so many days. In a single breath she explained everything with tears still flowing. But she was unaware of what had happened in village after she was kidnapped. Her father’s reply stopped her hopes on life for a moment. He told that the kidnapers had given money to the family. They had told that he can’t earn that much money with his daughter working in farm. They told him to use that money and take care of the family. Otherwise, he would have to lose other daughters too. Her father told if Seema returns, they will kill her and they might harm her sisters also.

Seema didn’t tell anything. She had no words to tell. It started raining with thunder and lightning. Seema couldn’t differentiate whether it was outside or inside her. She stood still, all alone in an unknown place. While her feet were getting washed in rain her head was not. She looked up. There was a flyover protection over her head. The rain was getting heavier. Thunder and lightning were increasing. Vehicles had their headlights on. Honking increased in traffic signal. Seema was standing still and nothing else she could do. She spent the whole night beneath the flyover.

The next morning again the honking of the vehicles woke her up. She remembered everything. Again, her eyes became wet. But she started thinking that mere crying is not going to help her. Mourning for her past is a waste. Spark of life was still inside her. She had not eaten anything. The stomach doesn’t care, she was feeling hungry. She started asking for money with people passing nearby. She couldn't get any help. The hunger was increasing and she was feeling drained out. She was sitting beneath the flyover. Suddenly a car stopped in front of her. The door opened. She looked inside and saw the driver showing the currency notes of Rs.2000. The door for a new life was open and Seema had no other option than getting inside. Seema was not alone anymore. Bengaluru had adopted her in its own way. The driver asked her name. She thought for a while and replied, "Simran". "But I had never seen you around here" he asked. "Aajke baad jaroor dekhenge" she replied and asked, "chalein?".

This is how Seema became Simran.

Everyday Seema stands near the flyover where she had become Simran and waits for the customers. Today Simran has her own home to live, her own money to lead her life and her own card for identity in her own world.

I dropped Seema back near the flyover. She told, "Bhagvan aapka bhala kare". She turned back and started walking like she had done yesterday. While I was seeing, a car stopped near her. She talked to the driver and got in. The car moved away and she disappeared. But this time I knew it is the reality.

The plant of Bonsai is very attractive. Whole set of art is on its name. Lot of money is made on the name of Bonsai. Shows and gardens are also there. But if you think of the plant, it is not living its own life. It's roots are pruned, shoots are trimmed regularly. The plant body is tied with metal wire and brought to a shape needed. From inside the plant is going through a lot of stress but from outside it is looking beautiful to the world. I had met with a human Bonsai and life of a Bonsai was better understood.

BONSAI / SIMRAN LIFE CONTINUES.....

GKVK - The journey so far...

It was in 2012, ten years ago when I just completed PUC and aspiring for higher studies in farm science, GKVK was the only thing I knew. It was because the frequent encounter with the campus through many windows of KSRTC buses while to and fro travelling from my native Chikkaballapura to Bangalore. On April 2012, finally the most anticipated entry had begun for the application to B.Sc. Agriculture course.

Me and Appa dropped down in front of campus and started to walk towards inside the campus. The calm and densely stood mango trees in the orchards welcomed us at the beginning. Since it was the onset of spring, the Peltophorum and Jacaranda avenues on the either side of the road showered the flowers and the foot path was carpeted with blue and golden flowers; it was a delighted welcome for any new comer. We got down near Nayak Bhavan (Administrative block), went to Registrar's office and purchased the application. While coming back from the administrative block, we moved to canteen to have lunch. There I saw few students chasing insects with net in their hands. This reminded my childhood days, where we used to have Jewel beetles ('Jeerangi' or 'Jeerunde' in Kannada) during our vacation times and it was some sort of pride and respect in the group for someone who owns more number of beetles and their eggs. I was quiet happy that if I get seat, I get an opportunity to do all these things again. Very soon I came to know that it was for the entomology course where different insects/crop pests have to be collected and submitted as a part of practical work. However, it would be fun in doing our childhood activities again with or without the academic tagline.

After the lunch, we started to go back and on the way we met the guy who came along with us in auto and he was going to Horticulture department to purchase application for B.Sc. Horticulture course. Honestly I had no idea about different branches in farm science and the farm universities, until I came to this campus. We also went along with him to purchase the application for Horticulture; the giant banyan tree flaunted itself as the center of attraction in the department. There were also many colourful flowers bloomed and spreading the elegant vibes around the department building. The tissue culture lab built in antique style stole the sight; many scientists, DNA & RNA were carved out of concrete & metal and it was like all of them were having a happy conversation together.

Destiny paved its way for me; I got the Horticulture degree for which I applied unexpectedly and hence my under graduation and post graduation completed very far from and one in out of state. Finally after seven long years, the destiny directed me to where it was all started. I got seat in this campus for my doctoral degree. I'm confused to say that because of GKVK I got Horticulture degree or because of Horticulture now I got GKVK! Either of them is accepted.

A decade passed like blink of the eye; spending previous two years in this campus had been very great and explorative. Though we lost precious nine months because of global covid pandemic, in other way it helped to restore the local biodiversity, bird and animal population because of less or almost no human intervention. Wherever we are, we should see the opportunities present around us and we have to embrace them; only then one can bloom and flourish with the fullest potential.

Natural Immune Booster: Real or A Marketing Gimmicks

Walk into a medical store or over internet, we will find hundreds of pills and herbal preparations that claim either to support immunity or to boost it. In this worst phase of COVID-19, while India is capitulating to countless health problems and faltered mental peace, there are so many companies who developed a natural solution to enhance our pre-existing immune system. Now before empowering the empowered things we need to have a deep focus on our own system.

The immune system precisely is a system not a single entity.

- ❖ To function efficiently it needs balance and harmony.
- ❖ On the whole, our immune system does an outstanding job of protecting us from deadly micro-organisms every day. Sometime it ceases to function under some health glitches and make you sick.
- ❖ Our body produces antibody in response to the pathogen's antigen. We can assume the antibody as the soldier of our defence system. But the concept of boosting our immune system makes little sense scientifically.
- ❖ Basically empowering the system means increasing our immune cells, which is probably not necessary or it's like welcoming another glitch. For example, athletes who practice blood doping will come under risk of stroke.
- ❖ Attempting to increase the immune cells is complicated because there are different types of immune cells in our body. To fight with a deadly virus, which cells we want more is still an intricacy for scientists. After all, all those extra cells will go under apoptosis- a natural cell death before or after the war against microbes.
- ❖ As we grow older, our immune capacity reduced as our glands produce less T cells and that leads to death of venerable population from respiratory inflammation, influenza worldwide.
- ❖ This may pull out a question: how vaccination will work then? Well the vaccine is a weakened fragment of the pathogen's antigen which is non-dangerous for our body, in presence of which our body will produce its antibody. Now it's a fact that our immune cell has memory too. They remember the small non dangerous fragment of antigen and when the real dangerous pathogen enters our body it knows how to tackle it.
- ❖ Probiotics (Example: Yakult) available in the market contain millions of beneficial micro-organisms. Our body contains several micro-organisms inside the gut, which actually helps in our body metabolism and participates in our immune system too. So consuming them increases the inside microbes and indirectly helps to keep your immune power little intact.

- ❖ We take most specifically vitamin C tablets to improve our immune power, helps our body to fight against microbes. It can make a mal-nourished to fit but not the healthier to over-healthier.
- ❖ Engrossing on herbal side of the story, Herbs enhance our body metabolism as they contain several minerals in it. Some herbs collectively can enhance our immunity but not such an extent that we can fight against deadly viruses. Demonstrating whether an herb or any substance, for that matter- can enhance immunity is, as yet, a highly complicated matter.
- ❖ The fruits recommend for augmenting our immune system like citrus, orange, grape fruits, tangerines contain vitamin C. The super green vegetable broccoli contains vitamin A, C, B which later helps us to amend our metabolic. Garlic which contains allin later on crushed and chewed produce allicin (contain vitamin A & C) gives characteristic smell and taste. As it contains sulphur it helps to increase white blood cell count to fight against common cold. A current research claims that turmeric and Echinacea sp. have immunomodulatory properties.

In the denouement, the natural immunity booster may keep you strong and metabolically immune but it does not have any significant role in confronting a deadly virus. So, it's rather a marketing gimmick saying an unproved thing will boost our immunity and buying the faith of the citizenry.

The common banded awl, Hasora chromus, is one of the principal defoliator pests, causing severe leaf losses and in extreme situations, total defoliation. This pest has recently been noticed fluttering in large numbers in the UAS GKVK Campus. During this pest occurrence, entire plant was looks like a dried one without leaves. All the karanja trees in the campus were almost infested heavily by H. chromus and noted 90 - 100 % defoliation. Occurrence of skipper was characterized by presence of numerous larvae on leaves, pupae in folded leaves and activity of adults was also noticed in and around the karanja planted area. Outbreak of H. chromus was also recorded earlier in HSR layout and NBAIR Yelahanka campus.

Habit and Habitat

The common banded awl or Coeliadinae subfamily of skippers is the most abundant in India. It has a whirring, fast flight that may be heard at close range. It can be spotted early in the day visiting flowers and basking on leaves, frequently with its wings slightly separated.

Life cycle Common Banded Awl Butterfly, Hasora chromus

Eggs: It lays single eggs both above and below on young shoots or fresh leaves

Adult: The wings of adult butterfly are entirely covered with scales and are brownish black in color. Male butterfly wings are unmarked, whereas female butterfly wings

Larva: The caterpillar is cylindrical in shape, with a constricted second segment that resembles a neck with a black collar.

Pupa: The pupa is robust and pale brown. It will pupate in the folded fresh leaves and show shelter building behavior.

Host range: Larva of H. chromus recorded on many host plants but its intense defoliation is noticed in castor, Indian beech (karanja/ Pongamia), orange climber, Derris scandens and Heynea trijuga.

Management

Even though the trees were heavily damaged / defoliated by skipper, soon they were rejuvenated immediately after receiving early monsoon showers. Hence, there is no need to use any insecticides to keep this pest under control.

Underutilized Crops as Treasure Trove of Nutrients

“In a true sense, we have with us a treasure of valuable agro biodiversity that we have not explored scientifically yet”

Narendra Modi, Prime Minister of India, 2016

Millions of people around the world suffer from “hidden hunger” or micronutrient malnutrition. They do not get enough micronutrients required to lead healthy productive lives from foods that they eat. According to common wealth society London (2021), India ranks 101 out of 116 countries. Whereas as per Global Survey Report, India is ranked at 122 among the 181 nations for child development index (CDI). Forty-two per cent of children in India are underweight and 58 per cent of children are stunted by two years of age with more than 70 per cent of Indian women and children have serious nutritional deficiencies. The most commonly observed deficiencies in an unbalanced diet are vitamin A, iron, zinc, calcium, iodine, magnesium and selenium. Which obstructs the development of motor, sensory, cognitive, social, and emotional skills. Approximately 40 vitamins and minerals are considered as vital for physical, and mental growth, as well as for many metabolic activities. In particular, iron, iodine and vitamin A have been attributed to the most widespread forms of micronutrient deficiencies.

In the battle against malnutrition, chronic vitamin A, zinc and folate deficiency stands out as one of the most resistant nutritional problems in developing countries. The symptoms are not difficult to identify, the aetiology is well understood, treatments are available, and in most cases a food source are plentiful. For reducing malnutrition in the country, the Government of India framed the National Nutrition Policy (NNP). Under this policy, the core strategy envisaged was to tackle the problem of under-nutrition through dietary diversification as a tool to improve access and create conditions for improved consumption of nutritious foods, but the problem still exists in the country with a higher magnitude. It is essential to look for a sustainable, culturally acceptable, cost-effective strategy that can provide different micronutrients with multiple health benefits. Hence, food-based approaches could be the most sustainable way to increases the micronutrient status of population.

World Health Organization also advocates the use of a “Food-Based Approach” to combat micronutrient deficiency. Food-based approaches work as a tool to prevent micronutrient deficiencies. These approaches are dietary diversification, food production, and food fortifications as well as value addition at household levels and commercial levels.

Current over dependence on a few major staple crops has agronomic, ecological, nutritional, and financial repercussions, in a long run, it's possibly unsustainable. Many traditional / underutilized foods and vegetables are rich in vitamins, minerals, and other bioactive compounds. Thus, a valuable in achieving food and nutritional security. Which is also important for food, nutrition, and revenue generation. These days various types of underutilised crops are being researched as food and ethno medicine. They provide adequate micronutrient and contribute significantly to nutritional security of tribal and rural communities.

Underutilized foods have recently received much attention as a strategy to improve nutritional status of population. Neglected crops, 'New crops,' minor crops, and underutilised crops are all terms for crops that are abundant locally but rare globally. These are rare crops with hardly any scientific knowledge about their physiological, agronomic, and ecological characteristics. Underutilized green leafy vegetables (UGLVs) are very strongly linked to their cultural heritage and also their ability to cope with adverse growing and climatic conditions, which shows tremendous promise in the context of climate change.

India is blessed with several underutilized foods but is not utilized to the extent they should be, even though green leafy vegetables are a treasure trove of nutrients. Ethnic people from various cultures have their own localised knowledge about UGLVs and their culinary and ethnomedicinal application. Looking into the prevalence of high micronutrient deficiency disorder among the vulnerable groups, the utilization of underutilized crops can be explored to overcome nutritional disorders and nourish the ever-growing human population. It is, therefore, worthwhile to note that the incorporation in the daily diet could be beneficial to develop nutritionally rich and novel products for an ever-growing population.

These UGLVs are used in traditional food preparation such as subji, palya, sambar, Kashaya, roti, rice preparation etc. but it is limited to only tribal communities. Green leafy vegetables (GLV) and seasonally accessible UGLVs should be consumed in good proportions.

These UGLVs are rich sources of minerals, vitamins and also sources of protein, minerals, and vitamins, especially in areas where animal protein is rare. At present only sun drying is the processing method used to store UGLVs for off-season uses.

Traditional knowledge of the diversity of food resources must be protected as fundamental scientific data. Traditional foods are more economically efficient than processed foods. Ethno medicine documentation plays a significant role in highlighting traditional knowledge, which could be helpful in the invention of contemporary allopathic medications. Several synthetic drugs with plant origins have been described in contemporary pharmacopoeia are currently used by approximately 80 per cent of the people in developing countries to treat health concerns. Plant-derived medications account for up-to 25 per cent of all pharmaceuticals sold in industrialised nations. Moreover, UGLVs continue to be the most valuable and, in some cases, the sole source of therapies. Aside from being used to prevent and treat chronic ailments, several medicinal plants are often used as export commodities.

It has been reported that, about 20 per cent of the whole plants found in the world are used for medicinal and culinary purposes. The current loss of underutilized foods and associated indigenous knowledge linked with environmental degradation, deforestation, agricultural expansion, overexploitation, and population growth are the principal threat to underutilized food. The loss of indigenous knowledge is also aggravated by the expansion of modern education and lifestyle, making the younger generation underestimate its traditional values. This resulted in the deterioration of traditional practices.

Hence, documentation of UGLVs and their related culinary and ethnomedical knowledge is important to facilitate the discovery of new sources of food and medicine to promote the sustainable use of natural resources. Several herbal traditional recipes have been made by indigenous communities, especially by the local health healers. These preparations may have a significant role in the local health care system.

Secondary Agriculture Avenues for Income Generation

Agriculture is the core activity in rural areas of the country. While it is a primary sector, the material output from agriculture provides sustenance to multiple secondary sector manufacturing activities, which thereafter outputs products for end-consumers. The primary output that is directly consumable also requires undergoing activities that allow farmers to capture greater value from the markets.

As we know India is the second largest food producer in the world. In spite of this the consumers are not getting better quality food products. Around 30 % of total production gets waste due to Improper post harvesting, storage facilities, processing losses, mishandling, improper packaging, ill-equipped and weak cold chain infrastructure. This extent of wastage can be reduced only by means of high processing levels. More and more customer demand and increasing global competition is pressurizing to improve the pace and Quality of Innovation in this sector. Increasing retailing and higher spending of consumer is expected to increase the penetration of processed food in the Indian market. As a regulatory mechanism, the Ministry of food processing industry acts as a catalyst to bring greater investment for the entrepreneurs, guiding and helping the industry to create a conducive environment for its healthy growth. Entrepreneurship in food processing plays a vital role in diversification and commercialization of agriculture, enhances shelf life, ensures value addition to agro products, generates employment, enhances income of the farmer and creates market for export of agro food.

Secondary Agriculture

The secondary agriculture sector of the economy includes those economic sectors that produce a finished, usable product: production and construction.

- Secondary sector takes the output of the primary sector to produce finished goods suitable for other businesses/domestic usage.
- Examples of secondary agriculture – – vitamins from grains, - oil from rice bran, – starched sugar from corn, - milk and protein from soybean, – industrial chemicals and bio-fuel from sugarcane and lignans- cellulosic biomass, - fiber board from rice straw, – high value animal by products,
- Medicinal plants and herbal products not yet fully capitalized in India.

Avenues in Secondary Agriculture: Emerging market trends indicate and identify potential avenues of generating income by utilising the slack time available from occupation in primary agricultural activities. Here the avenues of Secondary Agriculture and ways to take forward in their promotion and adoption discussed as below;

Prior to Secondary Agriculture, there is need to discuss various push and pull factors that prompt the shifts to complement the income generation activity at farmers level. On one front, the emerging exodus of manpower from agriculture without its matching absorption into the manufacturing and service industries, triggers a need to provide alternative income generation opportunities calling for immediate focus on Secondary Agriculture. On the other hand, the rising per capita income of urban and rural people, changing consumption patterns, raising health care costs, changing education and rearing cost of the children, competition in international markets, technology enabled linkages between the production centres and the food processing industries and increasing awareness, empowering skills & educating on regulations on food safety standards are prompting changes in the production systems of agriculture and allied sectors.

Along with movement of manpower away from agriculture, its decreasing ratio of contribution to GDP is also considered as a parameter of development based on western models of economic growth. As manufacturing and service sectors mature in a traditional economy, the share of primary sector (agriculture) is seen to reduce. However, its contribution in terms of absolute numbers may be growing and it is essential to ensure this. More importantly, there is need to examine how primary and secondary agriculture can be modelled to generate productive employment and income opportunities, and this is critical in the context of India’s high population density.

The growth path has skipped the pathway of labour-intensive industries to opt for specialisation in skill-intensive industries (within manufacturing). This scenario of missing labour-intensive growth and adoption of higher skill-intensive growth has a significant bearing on the employment of manpower exiting from agriculture sector. It is in this context, that Secondary Agriculture deserves the attention in recognition of its ability to offer in situ gainful employment opportunities. The twin

The Avenues

Broadly, the avenues of Secondary Agriculture can be categorised into three types:

Type A: Value addition to Primary Agriculture Production Systems

This category broadly contains activities with respect to

- A) Inputs;
- B) Production systems; and
- C) Harvest / post-harvest segments of the agriculture value chains.

Avenues of secondary agriculture under Type A

Sl. No.	Input centric	Harvest and post-harvest centric
1	Nursery for horticultural crop	Pre-conditioning produce for markets: Fruits, vegetables, flowers, spices, etc.

		Assaying, packaging, pre-cooling and dispatch hubs
		Processing through drying and value addition
		Wet product processing using Fruits and vegetables
2	Nursery for forest species	Micro and Small Enterprises that can process the primary agriculture produce: garlic extracts / paste, turmeric powder, pickles, jams, etc.
3	Nursery for field crop
4	Nursery for flower crops
5	Vermicompost and organic fertilisers	Field scale drying units for green leafy vegetables eg. Dehydrated drumstick leaves
6	Anaerobic digested
7	Bio-fertiliser production (Azospirillum, Azolla etc.)	Custom Hiring Centers
8	Bio-Pesticides(Concoction, plant Extracts etc)	Agro-tourism
9	Soil testing / Analysis	Weaving, breeding, flavours, dyes, ayush medicines, etc.
10	Animal feed/ fodder production (including urea enriched straw blocks)	Bakery products using millets and cereals as a very remunerative activity.

This category encapsulates those vocations that add value to the primary agriculture activity. In other words, the activities of Secondary Agriculture in this domain primarily depend on the agricultural activities. While contributing to the productivity enhancement in crop cultivation or other production systems of primary agriculture, they also generate additional income to the rural youth. This calls for promotion of agriculture input production activity as enterprises in the rural areas.

Type B: Alternative Enterprises

Various vocations that can generate income without competing for the resources (land and manpower) employed in primary agriculture constitute Category B of Secondary Agriculture Avenues. Indicative list of alternative enterprises that can be promoted include:

Type B- Avenues of Secondary Agriculture
Bee Keeping	Nutrifarms	Seed bank
Sale of organic inputs	Piggery and poultry	Eucalyptus
Service for organic prodn.	Palmyra Palm Products	Bamboo Products

Need Products	Broomstick Production	Integrated Farming
Coir Extraction & Products	Daincha	Philosophy
Venom Farming	Kitchen Gardening / Sack Vegetable Cultivation	Babui Grass Products
Hydroponics	Aloe Vera	Out sourcing and value addition
Corn Powder Production	Ram Servicing	Sericulture
Rural Tourism/Agri Tourism	Bull Servicing	Sugarcane juice and jaggery production
		Establishing value addition units and bakery units

While these vocations have been adopted in different parts of the country, mainstreaming them through specific promotional activities and incorporating into various department schemes and funding support opportunities are the need of the hour. Since, these vocations need specific skill sets and equipment, special provisions that support the vocations are to be put in place and efforts to establish their supply chains and integrating them into the markets are the need of the hour.

A new and emerging area with additional non-farm income stream for farmers, especially in rain fed areas is solar based electricity generation and sale to grids. Union Government’s efforts to join hands with the state governments in supporting the installation of solar water pumps and supply of solar power to grid, offers large scope of income generation and uptake of complementary livelihood opportunities. However, solar power generation by farmers will need support by way of purchase of non-used energy (particularly during non-production seasons) by the Distribution Companies. A facilitative policy to this effect should be put in place.

Type C: Enterprises that strive on crop residues and wastes of primary agriculture & allied Sector

Type C Enterprises of Secondary Agriculture constitute various income generation activities that make use of residues and wastes of various field crops, horticulture crops, products of animal origin and forest produce.

Type C – Avenues of Secondary Agriculture
Cotton Stalk Products	Fibre Boards etc., from Rice Straw	Banana Fibre Extraction & Products

While the economic products of primary agriculture activities directly contribute to the economy and to the income of rural households, in several instances the residues and wastes of crops and animals do provide opportunities of income generation.

Women in secondary Agriculture and Micro-enterprises

Women make substantive contributions to all the agricultural activities encompassing crop production, dairying, animal husbandry, food processing and value addition and fisheries. Their engagements are visible cross the value chain. It must be appreciated, that they do this along with their responsibilities as home makers. Women can become exemplary micro-entrepreneurs, only if their innate talents are made professional through appropriate training to link up with markets and meet the laid down standards. As entrepreneurs, they will come to handle the money directly and claim the rightful position at home and in society.

The term Micro-enterprise under secondary agriculture must be understood with reference to economically productive and farm-oriented activities that generate income. Micro-enterprises are activities that employ less than 10 persons including the owner and family members. In contrast to wage employment, micro-enterprises represent opportunities for self employment, which farm women can take up with appropriate support. From a gender perspective micro-enterprise represent an opportunity for women to gain direct access to income when they may have limited avenues for alternative employment. From the perspective of economic empowerment micro-enterprises provide the women a platform for developing and exercising competence in managing an activity, handling funds, taking responsibility for business transactions and taking decisions.

Agro-processing Industry Development

Secondary agriculture can be the first step to feed the Agro-processing Industry or imitate the large secondary sector on a smaller mini or micro scale. The large scale industry finds special support through Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion and are key to remain technologically competitive in a global economy. Secondary agriculture can be a stepping stone for the industry to ensure quality raw material and integrate more closely with their source

Secondary agriculture as village and cottage enterprise units is discussed, that create employment and help capture value for the actors traditionally employed in the primary sector. However, the entire agro-processing sector sources its raw materials from the primary sector, and except for the aspects of size and technology, the units categorised as secondary agriculture, are essentially a part of the umbrella category defined as the secondary sector economic activity..

Present day Agro-based Industries in India

Fruits and vegetable processing	Foods, beverages, nutrients	Phytochemicals and nutraceuticals
Millet processing	Animal feed	Adhesives Agricultural chemicals
	Alternative fibres

Bakery and confectionery	Cellulose, cellulose membranes	Biodegradable plastics
Absorbents/adsorbents	Aromatic oils	Gelatin, Gluten Honey, Lac
Activated carbon	Antioxidants Proteins	Fertilizers, phytochemicals
Alcohol/butanol	Bio-based fuels	Cosmeceuticals

Gases/methane/CO2	Inks, dyes, pigments
Oils, waxes, binders, stabilizers	Industrial materials/soil amenders

These could be categorised into non-food and food industry segments

Food processing industry, inter alia includes

- Beverages– tea, coffee, juices, carbonated, wine, alcoholic, etc.
- Bakery and Confections – breads, biscuits, sweets, pastries, etc.
- Edible Oils – cooking oil, fats, refined, raw, etc.

- Milk & Dairy – butter, ghee, ice cream, cheese, powder, etc.
- Meats - frozen, preserved, canned, concentrate, additives, etc.
- Food grains and millets - flour, meals, ready-to-cook, ready-to-eat, etc.
- Spices & Condiments – powders, masalas, vinegar, sauces, etc.
- Dehydrated fruits and vegetables. Preserves – pickles, jams, chutney, juice, etc.

These industries, output a wide variety of products, and there is scope to scale up and develop such industries. The future of the agro-based industries is bright and inspiring. The currently under-utilised opportunities that should be considered as thrust areas are as follows-

- Millet based food products – promotion of minor millets is also recommended recognising the crops' ecological and nutritional significance.
- Bio-fuels – since India is import dependent for its crude oil requirements, bio based diesel and ethanol as fuel can be tapped to add to economic growth and be more environmentally friendly in our consumption.
- Medicinal & aromatic products and other by-products – extracts, perfumes, energy and composite materials can be scaled up within India. The use and reuse of agriwaste, pulp, briquettes, press-mud, bagasse, etc. allows farmers a market for left over raw material and saves valuable resources protecting the environment.

Opinion about UASB I am currently doing Ph.D in agri business management from UAS, GKVK, Bangalore. One of the best Agriculture university in Karnataka. It has great campus, good infrastructure, well established library, well learned professors and nicely framed curriculum. But, I personally feel it could be more effective if the department could have added more practical session's viz., forecasting prices, innovativeness in agri startups, incubation centre, establishing new market for agricultural products etc.
